

NAME OF WOMAN STILL IS UNKNOWN

Wounded Man Greatly Improved—Arrests Expected Within Next Few Days.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Hampton, Va., July 5.—Charles Harvey Kersey, who was dangerously stabbed by a woman at Grand View Hotel early Tuesday morning, was reported as being very much improved in the Dixie Hospital to-day. It was said that Kersey will be able to leave the hospital to-morrow, although he is yet extremely weak from the heavy loss of blood which flowed from the severed artery in his neck. It developed to-day that Kersey is a traveling salesman for a large New York house, although his home is in Alexandria. He is a single man.

All attempts to ascertain the correct name of the woman who stabbed Kersey have proved unavailing up to this time. In the neighborhood of Grand View the people say that one of the women was known as "Mrs. Kersey," and that the names of the other women were a mystery. According to the people in that community, it is said that the camping party has been having a gay time since the camp started ten days ago. The local police have been further information concerning the identity of the woman, they are not identifying for publication. However, it is believed that several arrests will be made in the next day or two.

It was learned to-day that the woman who stabbed Kersey went into hysterics after the cutting and that Dr. George W. McAllister, who first attended the wounded man, had to give her medical attention. She is described as a small woman, with dark hair and rather prepossessing.

According to Deputy Sheriff Charles Curtis, the campers covered up their tracks so well that they were not traced from Grand View that they never left a "thin can on the premises."

Son of Washington Man.

Washington, D. C., July 5.—Charles Harvey Kersey is the son of Charles T. Kersey, of 406 M Street, Southwest, night engineer of the Star Building. He is employed as traveling salesman for a New York mercantile house, and makes frequent trips through Maryland, Virginia and other Southern States. He formerly was connected with the Land Office, traveling extensively through the West on surveying trips. He is unmarried.

His father said this morning he last saw his son about two weeks ago, when he started on a Southern trip. He had no idea who the woman might be. The senior Kersey was for Hampton this evening on one of the boats of the Norfolk and Washington Line.

After four days of quiet and careful inquiry, Patrolman Waymack, the Third District, detailed by Captain Wright to discover the source of all the brass fixtures found on George Lavesey and John Clark last Saturday, yesterday succeeded in deducing that the brass was stolen from the factory of the Manchester Rug and Drugget Company, whose plant is on the corner of Sixth and Stockton Streets has been closed down for some months past.

As soon as the fixtures were identified as those which are missing from this company's factory, a warrant was issued for the two young white men with entering the house by force and stealing the brass. The warrant was served on the two in the City Jail, where they were remanded by Justice Maurice for ten days in default of furnishing the $500 bail required of them. When the two youths were arraigned in the Police Court, Part 2, Monday morning, Patrolman Waymack asked that the case be continued in order that he might have a chance to follow up his investigations. Lavesey and Clark will have a hearing before Justice Maurice on the morning of July 13.

A tour of inspection by Patrolman Waymack and Manager Smith, of the Manchester Rug and Drugget Company, disclosed yesterday that damage amounting to $200 or more had been done in the plant. In addition to breaking off and carrying away all the brass cups, journals, water cocks, spigots and electric wiring around the factory, the intruders had removed the spigot from a large barrel of engine oil and allowed the contents, valued at $40, to pour out all over the floor.

The despoilers, whoever they were, forced an entrance through the screen and wooden doors on the Sixth Street side, and after cleaning up all the movable brass fixtures in the factory, left the forced door looking as usual. The discovery of the stolen fixtures was made after Patrolman Waymack began his investigations. If the two boys are convicted of housebreaking they will have to serve long terms in the penitentiary.

The two youths were arrested Saturday morning by the merest chance. Patrolman Waymack noticed them juggling three sacks filled with some heavy material and remembering the complaints of stolen brass and on a venture made them show him what the bags contained. Yesterday Manager Smith could identify the contents of only one of the three bags, which he said he believed to be stolen. The other two bags, which he said he believed to be stolen, were forced and robbed by the youths. In one of the bags was found a brass plate bearing the name of the Manchester Furniture Company, a plant that went out of business some time ago.

Hydrophobia Feared.

Alarming symptoms from a dog bite sustained Saturday by J. E. Bass, of 1806 Bainbridge Street, have led the attending physicians to declare Mr. Bass in danger of hydrophobia, and to order him rushed to the Pasteur Institute in Washington to receive the course of treatment. The physicians believe that unless Mr. Bass takes advantage of this treatment his death may result.

Mr. Bass was bitten Saturday while chasing a dog sent him by a South Richmond neighbor, and at first paid little attention to the wound. Soon after, however, it began to swell and become inflamed, and a physician was called in to administer treatment. Hydrophobia was not at first feared, but development yesterday pointed to possible rabies, and Mr. Bass will be hurried to Washington.

According to the owner of the dog, he has never exhibited a vicious or dangerous disposition and the news that he had bitten Mr. Bass came as a surprise. The dog itself is not under close surveillance for signs of rabies, and it is probable that it will be killed on the first indication of the fatal disease.

Mr. Bass is a blacksmith and horse shener by trade.

Husband is Missing.

Becoming alarmed over the mysterious disappearance of her husband, Mrs. S. L. Minnis, of Fifteenth and Perry Streets, yesterday communicated with the police of the Third District and asked help in locating the missing man.

From her statements, it is not believed that Minnis has met with foul play, but that he has quit the city of his own accord. Mrs. Minnis admitted yesterday that there had been some small disagreement between herself and her husband, but she was not expecting it to lead to such consequences.

He was last seen in South Richmond Saturday afternoon when he drew his pay from the Southern Railway shops. Although no one saw him take the train, it is thought that he has gone from the city. His wife saw him for the last time Saturday morning, when he went to work and at that time he gave indication of any purpose to leave her. He is about forty-five years old.

Condemnation Proceedings.

Notice of condemnation proceedings to widen West Seventh Street from the south end of the Free Bridge for several blocks east was filed yesterday in the clerk's office of the Hustings Court, Part II. It was requested in the notice that the condemnation committee be appointed by Judge Wells on July 24, which will be after the opening of the regular July term of the court.

There is no more important or crying need in the new ward, according to citizens, than the opening and widening of the lower end of Seventh Street, as the extreme narrowness of the street at this point has been the cause of innumerable accidents. Although the street for several squares at the south end of the bridge is only a few feet wider than the two car tracks, all the heavy traffic between the cities is crowded along this thoroughfare, and the congestion is great. A sharp turn in the street just after the bridge is left further endangers this section of the street and makes it one of the most, if not the most dangerous street in the whole city.

The city took cognizance of this bad spot shortly after annexation, and began steps to widen the street. It is the purpose of the Council to add twenty feet on the south side of Seventh Street all the way to McDonough, which, although a costly undertaking, will do away with this death trap. By making the south side of the street, from the end of the bridge to the viaduct over the Southern Railway tracks, a public dumping place, the city has succeeded in having a great deal of the proposed twenty feet extra filled in without cost to the municipality.

Wagon Struck by Car.

A rear-end collision yesterday morning at 10 o'clock between a Hull Street car and a wagon of the Rennie Dairy Company, on West Seventh Street, resulted in only a few scratches for the wagon. TRIES TO SAVE DOG AND LOSES LIFE

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Danville, Va., July 5.—While endeavoring to save a dog from the path of the Southern Railway's fast mail No. 43, Southbound, Grant Clark, a white man, about thirty-five years old, was struck by the train and so badly injured that he died about an hour later after being taken to the hospital.

The accident occurred about 6 o'clock this afternoon at the Keen Street crossing, and at a time when hundreds of mill operatives were returning home from work.

The train, which is an unusually long one, stopped within its own length after the accident, and the injured man was placed in one of the mail cars and brought across the river to the passenger station. Clark was the sole support of a widowed mother. He was regarded as a hard worker.

An especially impressive memorial service was held here to-night at Cabell Street Memorial Church in honor of the memory of the late William Paylor and Thomas Anderson. Two life-sized portraits of these men were unveiled. They were the pioneers in the church, which is now one of the largest churches in this section.
